NORMANTOWN TRAIL
(111th St. to Rockwell Ln.)

As part of the 2016-2018 Capital Improvement Program, the Normantown Trail Improvement Project includes the design and construction of 0.85 miles of trail from 111th Street to Rockwell Lane, just north of 119th Street in Naperville and Plainfield Illinois. The project will utilize the existing Normantown Road corridor for the proposed trail improvements and provide a pedestrian crossing of 111th Street.

This trail section is part of a larger project that will convert most of Normantown Road into a 4.7-mile hiking and biking path that will travel from Wolf's Crossing Road in Naperville south to 135th Street in Plainfield.

The process of converting the underutilized road into a trail began in the mid-2000 and is a collaborative effort. For instance, a 1.5-mile trail section that stretches from Vermont Cemetery Preserve to 111th Street is in place and was built by the Forest Preserve, the City of Naperville and three developers constructing subdivisions along the path.

While most sections of the road are being trimmed down to a 12-foot wide trail, a 0.15-mile section of the path will remain as a shared-use road so vehicles can continue to access Rockwell Lane from 119th Street.

Another 2.2-mile section of the trail will be constructed sometime in the future south of 135th Street by the Village of Plainfield and the Plainfield Park District.
